

IEPs that Support Student Independence and Growth

WHEN

December 3, 2024
8:30 am – 3:30 pm

Registration Deadline: November 26, 2024

CLASS DESCRIPTION

Does it really matter what you write in an IEP? A strong, meaningful IEP leads to more effective and targeted support and services for the unique needs of students. Increasing a focus on student strengths, specially designed instruction, and meaningful goals in turn supports student agency and independence. How? This course is designed for teachers that are developing IEP writing skills and who need a thorough review of each section of the IEP. The course elements will provide compliant practices for IEP writing and guidance on how to create IEPs that support student engagement and progress, as well as weaving student strengths, specially designed instruction, and SMART goals in the document.
