

Reading, Writing, and Arithmetic: Integrating Literacy into the Math Classroom

WHEN

February 27, 2025
8:30 am – 3:30 pm

Registration Deadline: February 20, 2025

CLASS DESCRIPTION

This course examines the connections between writing, reading, and math while highlighting the value of explicitly teaching vocabulary using research-based teaching techniques and practical learning activities that engage students in meaningful discourse, and stimulate students' curiosity and prior knowledge. It highlights how these abilities are combined to improve critical thinking, communication, comparison, inference, prediction, and cause-and-effect relationship recognition—all of which contribute to the promotion of mathematical literacy, improved comprehension, and development of effective problem solvers.
