

Integrating the Science of Reading & Writing

WHEN

November 12, 2024
8:30am – 3:30pm

Registration Deadline: November 5, 2024

CLASS DESCRIPTION

The synergy between the science of reading and writing is powerful. By leveraging the connection between these two foundational literacy skills, teachers can enhance their instructional practices, foster deeper learning, and support the holistic development of their young students. In addition to gaining a thorough understanding of the science of reading and writing, participants in this course will explore effective strategies for incorporating writing activities that complement reading instruction and learn to create engaging and developmentally appropriate writing tasks. Participants will leave with actionable plans and resources to implement in their classrooms.
